

Top Job Search Websites

indeed.com	A comprehensive job listings aggregator and search engine, Indeed grabs listings from all over the Internet and puts them in one place. You can search by job title and location, as well as upload your résumé.
monster.com	One of the most popular job websites, Monster allows you to search by job title, skills, or keywords and location. You can also upload your résumé for employers to peruse, get career advice and sign up to receive emails from Monster with potential new job matches.
careerbuilder.com	Another major site, CareerBuilder aggregates jobs from "more than 9,000 websites, including 140 newspapers and broadband portals such as MSN and AOL." Job searchers can also post résumés, receive job recommendations and peruse advice.
usajobs.gov	The U.S. government's official site for federal job listings nationwide.
idealists.org	If you're trying to be the change you want to see in the world, Idealist is the job search engine for you. It has job postings exclusively from nonprofit organizations.
simplyhired.com	This site promises a simple but effective job search, plus information on salaries and job trends in your area.
higheredjobs.com	This site allows you to search faculty, staff, and executive positions at a variety of colleges and universities.
collegerecruiter.com	CollegeRecruiter.com is the top career site for college and university students searching for internships and recent graduates hunting for entry-level jobs, work, employment, continuing education, and business opportunities.
nationjob.com	The number one community-based job network in the U.S., with 20 years of experience connecting job seekers, employers, communities, and industries.
npo.net	NPO.net is a full-featured job board for nonprofits and certain government agencies (such as city offices and companies that provide the majority of their services to the nonprofit community) that desire to find staff with community service experience. NPO.net is always free for job seekers and cost affordable for agencies seeking to post jobs.
socialservice.com	SocialService.com is the job site for social work, counseling, psychology, mental health, case management, EAP, volunteer management, substance abuse treatment, domestic violence, community development, youth development, child welfare, developmental disabilities, and all other areas of social services.
upwork.com	A large marketplace of freelancers and freelance employers, Upwork lists gigs in areas including programming, design, writing, virtual assistants, internet research, and more. Upwork's success as a marketplace is due to its escrow service, provider rating system, and global reach.
onetonline.org	O*NET Online has detailed descriptions of the world of work for use by job seekers, workforce development and HR professionals, students, researchers, and more!
careeronestop.org	The One-Stop Career Center has links to information on searches, resumes, interviewing, education, and training.
salary.com	Great resource for researching careers and learning.